

160. Keyboard ProficiencyM. Dietrich

One credit.

For music majors who have not passed keyboard proficiency requirements. Instruction is based on scales, arpeggios, melody harmonization, score reading, and sight reading at the keyboard. May be repeated. Grading is Pass-Fail.

190. Performance Organizations

One credit.

Membership in the following music organizations is open to all students on the basis of audition. Instruments are available on loan. May be repeated, but only eight credits may be counted toward graduation. Grading is Pass-Fail.

Section 1.	Chamber Music Ensemble	Staff
Section 3.	Choral Union	Hughes
Section 4.	Collegium Musicum	Hughes
Section 5.	Jazz Ensemble	Dietrich
Section 6.	Orchestra	Szabo
Section 7.	Symphonic Wind Ensemble	Dietrich

260. Techniques

Three credits. Sections 1, 3, and 5. Two credits. Sections 2 and 4.

Primarily for music majors seeking certification as public school music teachers. Some of these courses are required for the various types of certification.

Section 1.	Brass and Percussion Techniques	Dietrich
Section 2.	Guitar Techniques	Miller
Section 3.	String Techniques	Williams
Section 4.	Vocal Techniques	Hughes
Section 5.	Woodwind Techniques	Kelly

National Security Studies*Associate Professor Lamont Colucci (Coordinator)*

The minor in national security studies provides focused study of national security issues in an interdisciplinary context. It is designed for those students who wish to pursue in-depth study of issues such as security policy, intelligence issues, energy security policy, economic/trade security issues, terrorism, WMD and policy, and politico-military affairs. It will also be useful for students interested in professionally related careers in governmental or non-governmental organizations.

Requirements for a minor in national security studies: 22 credits chosen from courses listed below (12 credits required, two credits of capstone thesis and eight credits elective). The two credits of capstone thesis will be in a topic concerning contemporary national security conducted in an appropriate department such as politics and government, philosophy, religion, history or economics. This project will normally consist of a twenty to twenty-five page paper and a 20-minute oral presentation approved by the national security studies advisor. Students electing a major in politics and government may count no more than eight credits hours from the Department of Politics and Government toward a national security studies minor.

Required Courses for all:

POL 343: U.S. National Security Policy
 POL 550: National Security Capstone

Required: 8 credits chosen from the following:

POL 381: United States Foreign Policy
 POL 385: Terrorism and Intelligence
 REL 321: Ethics and International Affairs (same as IDS 321 and POL 383)

Elective: 8 credits chosen from the following:

ANT 222: Anthropology and Contemporary Global Issues
 ECO 361: Development Economics I or ECO 461: Development Economics II
 ECO 452: International Economics
 HIS 282: World History (same as GLB 282)
 HIS 351: World War I: Causes, Conduct, and Consequences (additional offerings in history dealing with diplomacy, war and politics will also be considered)
 HIS 362: Topics in History of the Modern Middle East
 PHL 353: Human Rights
 POL 372: Development and Change in Latin America
 POL 373: China in Transition
 POL 376: Politics of Contemporary Europe
 POL 380: Topics in International Politics: International Relations
 REL 322: Religion and Politics in Comparative Perspective
 (same as IDS 322 and POL 375)

Any two Military Science courses depending on offering with consent of the National Security Studies Advisor and ROTC Commander. Courses must deal with military policy, history, organization or roles. Examples of such a course is:

MIL 305: U.S. Army Campaign History

Other courses related to national security and security studies as approved by the program coordinator.

Philosophy

Associate Professor Paul F. Jeffries (Chair);

Assistant Professor Joshua Filler;

Adjunct Professor Robert V. Hannaford

Departmental Mission Statement: The Department of Philosophy enables students to better pursue their own paths to wisdom. They will encounter the best that has been thought and said about basic human concerns throughout civilization. They will be encouraged to see the relevance of these ideas and practices so that they engage conceptual and social concerns with greater coherence, perspective, and responsibility. Most importantly, students should be able to see the relevance of these ideas and use the skills developed to respond to new problems that may emerge as they continue on their own lifelong pursuit of wisdom.

Communicating Plus - Philosophy: Philosophy majors develop skills in the four Communicating Plus skills areas - written communication, oral communication, critical thinking, and problem solving. The central activity of doing philosophy is solving philosophical problems - problems occurring when things don't make sense because conflicting ideas seem equally reasonable. Developing an understanding